HOSHIGAKI-----

HOSHIGAKI: MASSAGED, HAND-DRIED PERSIMMON. Ancient method of peeling the unripe persimmon, then massaging it for four to six weeks as it ripens and dries. End product is like the texture of a dried date with a light dusting of naturally formed white fructose.

Supply is limited this year due to drought conditions and aging work force. Please get your orders in early as possible, since earliest orders ship first. Hoshigaki quality changes with time and temperature. For best quality, we opt to ship during cool weather. We advise that the recipient be at the shipping address on the day of delivery. Depending on weather and quality of product, shipments may not begin until the end of November or beginning of December. Sorry, as of Dec. 20th we are no longer able to accept new mail order hoshigaki orders for the 2016 season. If you would like to be on the waiting list to be notified in case we find there is a remaining supply, please email us.

FRESH FRUIT-----

FRESH FRUIT SHIPMENTS will be made when in season as available. For best quality, fresh fuyu should be received before freezing temperatures and may not be available after Nov. 20. Fruit size is smaller this year due to drought conditions. Please note that we were not happy with last season's shipping method so we are back to using Fed Ex and the small fruit box. Our fruit prices have not changed, but the weight and shipping cost have increased. As of December 20th, we are no longer able to ship out fuyu or Satsuma mandarins for the 2016 season.
